DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's election with traverse of Group I and Species E (Fig. 27) in the reply filed on 5/22/08 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the claims have been previously examined. This is not found persuasive, see 37 CFR 1.142 (a), "a restriction requirement will normally be made before any action upon the merits; however, it may be made at any time before final action."

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claims 9,11,13,44-51 are pending, claims 1-8,12,14-43 are withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 9, 11-13, 21,22, 23, 24 and 26 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Giesy et al. (US 5152749) in view of Li (US U.S. Patent No. 5,250,054) and Ferguson (U.S. Patent No. 3877434).

Giesy teaches an implant placement device comprising the following:

- a connector pair (44, 46) for attaching a medical implant (40) to a delivery device (10)
- the connector pair comprising, a closed loop connector (44) located at an end of a medical implant (40)

- a slotted connector (46) formed in a distal end (20b) of a shaft (20) of a delivery device (10)
 - for interfitting with the closed loop connector of the medical implant (fig. 3)
 - the distal end of the shaft includes a tapered section (Fig. 4) that is substantially straight and conical
 - the tapered section of the shaft is substantially straight (Fig. 3, shows straight distal end)
 - the distal tip is blunt (Fig. 3)

Geisy fails to disclose wherein the slotted connector includes first and second legs the first leg extending radially into the shaft and the second leg extending axially in a distal direction from the first leg along the shaft and being longer than the first leg and includes a narrowing for locking the looped connector into the second leg. Ferguson teaches a device for holding a suture material comprising a slotted connector, wherein the slotted connector includes first and second legs, the first leg extending radially into the shaft and the second leg extending axially in a distal direction from the first leg along the shaft and being longer than the first leg and includes a narrowing in order to permit easy insertion of the suture into the opening and to wedge the suture into tight frictional engagement with the device (Column 3, proximate lines 26-31).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the device of Giesy with a slotted connector as taught by Ferguson in order to permit easy insertion of the suture into the opening and to wedge the suture into tight frictional engagement with the device.

The combination of Giesy and Ferguson further teaches the following limitations

- wherein the second leg is longer than the first leg
- the second leg extends distally at a 90 degree angle to the first leg
- the narrowing is formed where the second leg initially extends from the first leg
- the width of the narrowing is less than that of the loop material
- The second leg of the slotted connector extends axially into the tapered section of the shaft
- The first leg of the slotted connector is proximal of the tapered section of the shaft
- The distal tip is solid

The combination of Giesy and Ferguson teach the claimed invention but do not have the first and second legs join at an inside corner and an outside corner, the outside corner being located proximal to the inside corner along the shaft, however Li teaches the first and second legs join at an inside corner and an outside corner, the outside corner being located proximal to the inside corner along the shaft (Fig. 4A). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use the corner of Li with the invention of Giesy and Ferguson, as this corner aids in securing the loop connector.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
